

The Verona Single

$1.50

Friday, May 30, 1594

Street Fight leads to Tragedy

Capulet fuels the fight

Keegan R. Heaton

VERONA - Two Men were found dead earlier this afternoon, both men were from opposite popular households known for their aggressive nature towards each other. Viewers of the fight say that the Capulet, which was a high figure inside the Capulet house, began taunting the Montague Princess known as Romeo.

Caption about the picture above.

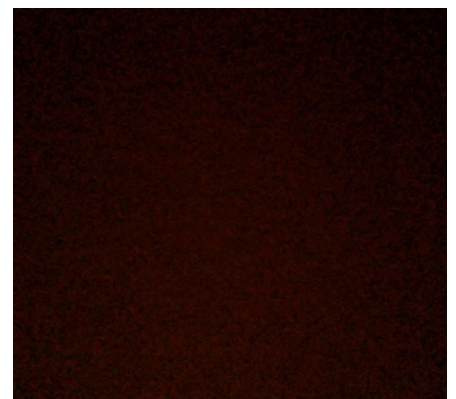

The fellow Montagues who were very close to Romeo, Benvolio, and Mercutio, had also been at the scene before Romeo appeared. Once the Capulet known as Tybalt began insulting Romeo and wanted to engage a fight between them, Mercutio took to himself and fought Tybalt. This incident left Tybalt unscathed and Mercutio with a lethal injury. From our sources, afterward, Romeo became infuriated and killed Tybalt.

How it came to be

Keegan R. Heaton

VERONA - With the help of a few viewers and resources, we came to the conclusion of how this fight came to be so gruesome, as well as who was to blame for what. A few days before the conflict, A Maskerque ball was held by the leaders of the Capulet household. After getting noticed by an illiterate servant giving invitations to welcomed individuals, Romeo and his two friends found out after helping the servant with instructions. After this encounter, Benvolio encouraged Romeo to go to the ball hosted by the Capulet leaders, hoping that Romeo would find a new lover. Romeo agreed to attend the Capulet Ball.

A master in disguise caught by Tybalt

Keegan R. Heaton

VERONA - Hiding behind a mask, Romeo walked into the ball without having anyone notice that he wasn't a Capulet. But, soon after, Tybalt noticed Romeo and began to pull his sword. But the Leader of the Capulet household told Tybalt to stand down because there is no Montague residence at the ball. This enraged Tybalt, leading to the fight between him and Romeo's friends.

--	---	--